

National CIAG Education: Support for Colleges 2021/22

The SDS National Education team can support colleges to embed career education and take forward the implementation of a learner journey approach. We offer a range of opportunities that can be tailored to complement existing activity in relation to DYW, skills development and career education in support of national policy including Scotland's Future Skills Action Plan, the 15-24 Learner Journey Review and the Cumberford Little Report.

Engagement with college groups and networks

We can contribute to strategic and operational college networks to provide:

- professional learning
- offer information and support
- explore potential collaboration, and
- plan implementation

Collaborative projects

- Develop and test new approaches and resources
- Provide more in-depth and extended support for career education related college initiatives or projects, where appropriate
- Support shared developments between schools, colleges and local authorities to create an authority wide approach to skills development and profiling from primary school, throughout secondary, into college and beyond – the learner journey approach

Professional learning

Our suite of professional learning workshops focus on building awareness, knowledge and understanding in relation to a number of key themes (outlined overleaf) and can be tailored for different audiences including:

- Senior leaders
- Curriculum quality leads, personal academic tutors and student associations
- Support for newly qualified practitioners
- Joint professional learning with schools, local authorities and employers
- Key notes and workshops at conferences and events

National CIAG Education: Online professional learning workshops 2021/22

The graphic below summarises the range of online professional learning workshops available and reflects our suggested sequential approach to embedding career education. This allows colleges and practitioners to engage at the point that best reflects prior progress and professional learning.

This online learning can be delivered either through a combination of independent study e-learning with a live follow-up workshop or through live presentation and workshop.
